Hawaii . . . Bermuda . . . the Orient . . . Europe . . . California . . . British Isles . . . the Caribbean . . . Miami Beach.

These are the destinations of Kodakers under the 1968 Kodak group Travel Program. If all the trips are fully signed up, 900 Kodakers will take part.

There are two deluxe trips in April and October, the latter featuring a San Francisco stopover en route and an optional return to California by the Matson cruise ship SS Lurline.

Both the European and British Isles trips offer complete land tours or flight-only options.

Both the European, a summer trip, and British Isles, a fall trip, are by KLM DC-8 jets. Kodakers will be transported by bus to Niagara Falls for both trips. The European flight-only passengers may disembark and catch the return flight at either London or Amsterdam. The British Isles flight-only people may disembark in either London or Amsterdam and catch the return flight from Amsterdam or Shannon, Ireland. The Hawaiian flights go from Rochester to San Francisco by American Airlines and to Hawaii from there by Pan American. The Orient trip will fly American Airlines to the West Coast and Japan Air Lines to Tokyo.

In a few days, you will be receiving a brochure at home by mail, giving details of all the trips, deposits required, eligibility, etc.

Entering the Kodak International Salon of Photography for the first time will be Sharon Telego, left, of the Kodak Research Labs; Don Chamberlin of KO Photo Info Serv., and Jill Jacoby of the Info Serv. Dept., KP. They will be competing for prizes reserved just for beginners as well as for other major awards. Sharon and Don will enter pictorial prints, while Jill is submitting pictorial and nature transparencies to this salon which will be hosted by Kodak Australasia early in 1968. To make it a real competition, they urge all picture-taking Kodakers—men and girls—to submit photos. Entry blanks are available at the Kodak and KAD Camera Clubs, recreation offices in Rochester, and EK regions, stores and labs. Deadline for entries to reach the Kodak Camera Club in Rochester is Tuesday, Jan. 2.

Park Idea Men Get Additional Awards

Two high additional awards were paid to KP suggesters during the 10th period. Orlo Balch and Robert Putzig, pictured at left, of the Field Div. shared $1,890 (orig. $100) for designing an adjustable door buck frame which will be used extensively in a new area. Simeon Monagan, above, Film Emulsion Coating, was paid $1,200 (orig. $430) for recommending a better material for splicing rolls of raw photographic product. Balch has been in the Field Div. since 1940, Putzig since 1954. Monagan started in Film Emulsion Coating in 1954.

Opening of the new Kodak Marketing Education Center at Atlanta, Ga., brought together Company executives from various parts of the country. Chatting near the entrance are, from left, Donald E. Hyndman, EK assistant vice-president and general manager of MPEM; Henry L. Ford of Kingsport, Tenn., president of Eastman Chemical Products, Inc., and M. Wren Gabel, EK executive vice-president. 2 This cake was not for eating but it was properly appreciated by Ted Montuori, manager, BSM Processing Serv. Associates presented the festive non-pastry to Ted on his birthday. Made from rolls of microfiche, it symbolized his contributions to the design and development of microfiche production techniques.

3 A bit of Kodak Instamatic camera wizardry amused SP/4 Thomas Bates during a recent R&R leave in Bangkok, Thailand. Tom has been in Vietnam since January and expects to return home in February 1968. His mother, Ruth, is in KP Kodacolor and his fiancée, Mary Jane Boyd, is in BSM Advertising, KO.

4 Getting acquainted are Dr. Meredith Hoskins, KO Medical, and a four-month-old dachshund, whom he named Gretchen II. Gretchen was a retirement gift from the nurses in the Dispensary and Eye Service of Medical.

5 For you who were waiting in the pumpkin patch this Halloween, the Great Pumpkin appeared at Kodak Office. Stealing a costume idea from a Kodak magazine ad, Jane McCabe attended to her duties as a teller at ESL dressed as the Great Pumpkin.

6 Tom Gompf, Research Laboratories, Bldg. 59, who likes to spend much of his spare time gardening, recently brought a sample of his work into the office. It was a lily, approximately 7½ feet high, which he had planted as a seed three years ago. Transporting it was no easy task. "I drive a Volkswagen," he said.

KODAK PARK . . . A coffee hour and gift presentation marked the 25th service anniversary of Chuck Mearriam, Industrial Laboratory, who was the guest of his associates. Dr. Donald Anderson, director of the Lab, made the gift presentation. . . . German University Scientists Here to Exchange Data

Two members of Philipps University, Marburg, Germany, have joined the Kodak Research Laboratories for five months as part of a program to exchange scientific data relating to photographic theory.

Dr. Hans Kuhn, professor of physical chemistry, and Dr. Dietmar Mobius, instructor, Philipps University, are conducting research in the theory of energy transfer in the photographic sensitization process.

Dr. Kuhn has visited the United States previously. He spent a year at California Institute of Technology on a postdoctorate fellowship from his native Switzerland. His lecture at the Illinois Institute of Technology two years ago first brought his research on the energy-transfer theory to the attention of Kodakers. Following his lecture at a photographic symposium in Washington last October, he was invited to join the Research Labs to work with Kodak photographic materials.

Dr. Kuhn and Dr. Mobius brought their families with them to Rochester. Dr. Kuhn has four children and they are attending school here. Dr. Mobius' two children are preschool age. The scientists said that everyone has been very friendly. They like the way of living in the United States and the activity and cheerful attitude of the people.

Both men are pleased with the opportunity for exchanging scientific information and they and their families are enjoying their stay in Rochester.

Chilean Friendship Renewed in Rochester

Friends had a reunion when Rafael Ocariz, left, owner of Casa Losada in Santiago, Chile, and a Kodak dealer for 15 years, was greeted at Kodak Rochester by Enzo Pastorino, IMD graphic arts marketing development specialist who until May was assistant manager of Kodak Chilena. Ocariz had flown north to Mexico City, driven to Los Angeles and flown to Rochester. After visiting the Kodak factories he departed for Expo 67 and expected to tour Europe before returning to Santiago in early December. Speaking of Kodak Instamatic cameras, he said he has observed many tourists in Chile recording their trips with these cameras, and added that he hopes import restrictions on cameras soon will be relaxed in his country.

Dr. Richard O. Edgerton, KP Training supervisor, presents certificate of accomplishment to Ellester Davis, KP Plant Services, during the third commencement program honoring both new trainees and regular employees who have completed educational programs conducted by the Board for Fundamental Education. Ninety-one persons have successfully completed courses since last May. Seated behind Dr. Edgerton is Howard E. Smith, administrative assistant to the Dynamic portraits of world-famous people, taken by one of the most highly regarded women in photography, are on display at the Kodak Exhibit Center in Grand Central Terminal, New York City.

Portraits Featured

"Portraits by Editta Sherman" is a collection of 50 black-and-white photographs of famous artists, authors, entertainers and society personalities. Included are studies of authors Herman Wouk and Aldous Huxley, actress Julie Newmar, conductors Leopold Stokowski and Leonard Bernstein, and poet Carl Sandburg.

Notes About Retired Folk

Leon Hibbard, KP Accounting retiree, is registered at the Hollander Hotel in St. Petersburg for the winter season and is looking forward to seeing some of his Kodak friends.

Before departing for their winter home in St. Petersburg, Fla., Marshall Goodrich and his wife were dinner guests of the Ray Simpsons at Keuka Lake. Both Ray and Marshall retired from KP Paper Sens.

Five generations of the family were represented at a party and reception given for Miles Thomas, KP Chemical Lab retiree, and his wife, who celebrated their golden wedding anniversary Oct. 27. Among those on hand were their son, Dr. James Thomas, who flew to Rochester from Los Angeles, and Mrs. Thomas' brother, Edward Riggs, KP Baryta. Thomas retired in 1959 after 34 years of service. He and his wife now make their home in New Port Richey, Fla.

Animal Adventures Next on TV

A day in the lives of wild creatures that inhabit the High Sierras is the subject of this week's "Wonderful World of Color" show, "One Day at Beetle Rock."

The stars of the dramatic animal adventure story are a weasel and her brood, a lizard, a jay, a deer mouse, a Sierra grouse, a coyote, a black bear and her cubs, and a buck deer that is sentry for all of the other animals as well as the herd he leads.

At one point a terrifying summer thunderstorm has a dramatic effect on the animals and adds to a story filled with emotion, violent action, pursuit and happiness, as each animal reacts to every other animal and to nature's dilemmas.

Cosponsored by Kodak, "One Day at Beetle Rock" will be aired at 7:30 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 19, on NBC (Channel 8 in the Rochester area).

Kodak Pavilions' Popularity Spurs Plans for Expo 70

To discuss plans for Expo 70 in Osaka, Japan, Shozo Nagase, executive managing director of Nagase & Co., distributor of most Kodak products in Japan, and William S. Vaughn, EK board chairman, met recently at the Kodak Pavilion at Expo 67 in Montreal.

"Eastman Kodak Co. has applied for space to build a private pavilion at Expo 70," Vaughn told Nagase.

"At both the New York World's Fair of 1964-65 and at Expo 67 in Montreal, Kodak pavilions have been very successful. The exhibits, dramatizing the impact of photography on many aspects of our daily life, have drawn consistently large crowds and thus have contributed to the success of these expositions.

"We at Kodak hope to take part in Expo 70 and to offer another popular attraction," said Vaughn.

As the shadows grow long on the sidewalk of the Kodak Pavilion at Expo 67 in Montreal, Shozo Nagase, left, and William S. Vaughn talk of Expo 70.

White House Seeks Fellow Applicants

The White House Fellowship Program is accepting applicants for 1968.

White House Fellows are assigned for one year in Washington as assistants to White House staff members, the Vice President, cabinet officers, or other top government officials. Emphasis is on direct participation in the most important work of the Executive branch. Job assignments are designed to give Fellows a better understanding of the process of government and not necessarily work experience in their chosen field. A continuing educational program helps prepare the Fellows for their work assignments and enhances the learning which takes place on the job.

Applicants must be U.S. citizens between the ages of 23 and 35 and graduates of an accredited four-year college. Men and women from all occupations are eligible.

Selection is based on their demonstrated exceptional ability, marked leadership qualities, unusual promise of future development, and high moral character.

If a Kodak employee applies and is selected as a White House Fellow, the Company will grant a leave of absence for participation in this program. Fellows receive a government stipend based on age, family status, current earnings.

In total, between 15 and 20 Fellows will be chosen from applicants from throughout the U.S. In the first three years of the program, 49 Fellows have been selected from 5,000 applicants.

Interested persons desiring further information about the White House Fellowship Program should get in touch with Edward P. Curtis Jr., KO ext. 3311, or Harding Margeson, KO ext. 2158. Deadline for mailing applications is Jan. 8.

"What a great idea!" says Karen Palani of BSM Copy and Duplicating Services. Using these self-adhesive address labels, stocked in KO Stationery, the time required to handle otherwise hand-typed regular mailings can be significantly cut.

KO Stationery's Fast Aid Kit Relieves Enveloping Headache

Attention all secretaries, typists, clerks!! In a moment's reading, here's a helpful hint that will save you hours.

Is it time once again to reach into your files and pull out that well-worn mailing list, and type, envelope for envelope, name for name, the addresses of TSRs, branch managers, supervisors, club members, etc., for whom your boss has important news or instructions?

Kodak Office Stationery has just the ticket to help shorten the time it takes to prepare a mailing from a list you use regularly. If your list of recipients is anywhere from 10 to several hundred and cannot economically be handled by the computer services in Advertising Distribution or by Secretarial and Duplicating Services, this method is a cinch to save you time, and therefore save your department money. Your boss will sing your praises!

The first thing to do is call Tom Herlihy, KO ext. 2107, and ask for a sample kit containing an illustrated instruction sheet, a master typing guide and gummed labels, which you may request in larger quantities as needed. Then type, just once, your original list, using the master backup guide to line up the addresses. Now load a Kodak Verifax or Ready-print copier with the labels, and zip!, faster than you can type three envelopes, your self-adhesive mailing labels are ready for mounting, and you've made several copies for mailings to come.

As an added time-saver, your original list can be updated by covering outdated addresses with typed-up gummed labels carrying the changed addresses.

Ingenious, isn't it, and so logical you're probably wondering why you didn't think of it. Credit for the suggestion which triggered this idea goes to Marilyn Brewer of KO Credit, who adds that "anyone who mails items such as booklets or IBM printed scrolls to the Regional Offices at regular intervals will find such labels useful."

KCC Plans First-Timers' Contest

Competition for first-timers, presenting an opportunity for graduates of the club's elementary photography courses to test their ability, will feature the Print Section's meeting at 7 p.m. Nov. 30 in the Camera Club Theater. Entries from beginners, advanced and expert printmakers also are listed. Both black-and-white and color prints are eligible for the competition. Judges for the event will be Gene DePrez, KO; Sheila Wells, a member of the faculty of Rochester Institute of Technology, and Al Wilson, a free-lance art director.

Beginning with the November competition, KO people may submit their prints to the KORC counter on the ninth floor. None will be accepted after 4 p.m. on Nov. 28. The deadline for entries brought directly to the Camera Club in Bldg. 28 at KP is 5 p.m. on the day preceding the competition.

Atlanta Marketing Education Center Opens

Unique Hub of Learning Offers EK Know-How

A long stride has been taken by Kodak in activating advanced concepts in learning with opening of the new Marketing Education Center in Atlanta, Ga.

This is the first link in a planned nationwide network of such centers to serve Kodak marketing areas. The Atlanta center, and others to follow, will be the hubs of learning about Kodak products and services for customers, dealers and Company personnel in their respective sections of the country. All of them will be directed from the main education center in Rochester. Programs for Atlanta are and will be created in Rochester, where research and product facilities are concentrated. Trained specialists of MEC here will bring their knowledge to the students.

Kodak executives of Rochester and the Southeastern Region and civic leaders of Atlanta participated in the opening ceremonies.

Vice-Mayor Sam Massell expressed his pleasure on selection of Atlanta for the first education center of its type in the country and he commended the Company for furthering the aims of education.

Film Cutting Officially Opens Center

R. Langdon Common, marketing director of the Southeastern Region, welcomed the assemblage following cutting of a strip of film by Vice-Mayor Massell and Gerald B. Zornow, EK vice-president, marketing.

Then the guests were conducted on a tour of the center, where they observed demonstrations and presentations that revealed the versatility of its systems.

Attracting much interest was CAPAL. This Computer And Photographic Assisted Learning system expands the capabilities of computerized instruction by incorporating the learning advantages of graphic color visuals and recorded sound into self-instruction programs. Designed for installation in private learning carrels, it was developed primarily to help Kodak personnel become more effective in their jobs. It will be used also to instruct Kodak dealers about Company products and procedures and to help customers become more effective in the use of photography. CAPAL is linked to a computer in Rochester which will be programmed with a wide variety of instructional information.

Zornow Cites Center's Importance

Speaking at a luncheon on opening day, Zornow said he believes the center will be important to photography as a whole, as well as to Kodak.

He cited the "tremendous demand for information . . . for training which will equip the participant for handling present machines and processes and provide him with a solid base on which he can build to meet change and the even more complex technologies of the future."

Growth of all phases of photography and graphic arts in Atlanta and the Southeast was a major factor in establishing this first Kodak education center in Georgia, Zornow explained.

Unique Learning Facilities

The learning facilities provided in the Atlanta center are unique in many ways. They were planned to help individualize instruction in small study groups, producing the greatest learning return for the time invested.

Features include a pair of seminar rooms, each seating up to 24 students and having unusual audiovisual capabilities. Three rows of tiered seats face a large turntable which can swing quickly in a half-circle. This permits two completely different displays in a brief time.

Laboratory and workshop areas have excellent flexibility. Ceiling grids spaced four feet apart allow quick movement of wall panels. Almost any configuration of classrooms can be created to accommodate the subject and group size. Plumbing and lighting fixtures are contained along a wall for easy access.

"Today, instruction on 'how to do it better' is part of our marketing mix," said Thomas H. Miller, director of Kodak's Marketing Education Center.

"Increasing technical complexity is a factor in virtually all of our markets. We believe we must provide our customers and dealers with the know-how to cope with this complexity."

Advanced Equipment

Helping to provide this know-how is a photo studio with the most advanced equipment. Closed circuit television, available throughout much of the center, allows showing of programs from the studio to participants in other parts of the building.

A general lecture-type room is available for large groups. Located near the kitchen, the room doubles as a dining area.

In the graphic arts center are a 17 by 23-inch process camera and Kodak Versamat film processor, along with many other units. The x-ray area has radiation shielding in the walls and soon will have a portable x-ray exposure unit. Processing will be done in the laboratory area.

The unit value as of Oct. 31, 1967, of each of the funds in the Eastman Kodak Employees' Savings and Investment Plan is shown. The computations are made from information supplied by the Morgan Guaranty Trust Co., the Trustees.
